LC TO DEVELOP POLAR BIBLIOGRAPHY

A grant to develop a Polar Prototype Bibliograpy System was recently awarded to the Library by the National Science Foundation (NSF). Geza T. Thuronyi, Head of the Science and Technology Division's Cold Regions Bibliography Project, is the principal investigator; the Information Systems Office is also participating in the effort, which is sponsored by NSF's Polar Information Service.

The purpose of the project is to develop a mechanized bibliographic capability for polar literature. One of the responsibilities of the NSF, which has long had sole jurisdication over all U.S. Antarctic research and has recently been designated the lead agency for the extension of Arctic research, is the coordination of all polar literature control efforts. The intent of the grant is to coordinate the mechanized handling of that literature.

A number of U.S. Government and private institutions here and abroad are now providing bibliographic coverage of the literature pertaining to polar regions; aside from the Library, these include the Department of the Interior in Washington, D.C., the U.S. Army Cold Regions Research and Engineering Laboratory in Hanover, N.H., the Arctic Institute of North America in Montreal, Quebec (mainly through its Arctic Bibliography, which is compiled in Washington, D.C.), the Scott Polar Research Institute in Cambridge, England, the Boreal Institute for Northern Studies in Edmonton, Alberta, the AGY World Data Center A in Takoma, Wash., and the University of Alaska in College, Alaska—to name only the principal English-language organizations.

The Cold Regions Bibliography Project compiles two bibliographic series, the Antarctic Bibliography, published since 1965 by the Library under NSF sponsorship, and the Bibliography on Cold Regions Science and Technology (BCRST), published and sponsored by the U.S. Army Cold Regions Research and Engineering Laboratory under various names since 1949. Until now, camera-ready copy for the Antarctic Bibliography has been manually produced, using conventional typewriters. Copy for the BCRST has been printed by the Library on a standard computer printer since 1968, the bibliographic data being coded and entered into a data bank using an input scheme based on the MARC format.

As a first effort under the NSF grant, the BCRST input format has been expanded so that it now accommodates all requirements of the Antarctic Bibliography and is flexible enough to adapt to other bibliographic needs, as well. Henceforth, the two bibliographies will share a single data base; separate output programs will handle the different features of the two bibliographies, both of which will eventually be photocomposed by the Government Printing Office. Keyboarding of Antarctic Bibliography data has begun, covering not only current material but also material published in the past; this will permit comprehensive computer searches and cumulated indexes going back to the Antarctic literature of 1962.

An important aspect of the grant is the stipulation that the project staff strive to coordinate its activities with other bibliographies. This will be done in two ways: (1) the compatibility of bibliographies of other agencies and organizations will be considered, and (2) other Government-sponsored mechanized systems will be investigated to determine their applicability and/or adaptability to the project, in order to keep development costs at a minimum.

The project is scheduled to run for one year, by which time the system is expected to be fully operational.

WHITMAN MEDAL PRESENTED TO LC

Charles E. Feinberg of Detroit, Mich., has presented to the Library of Congress a silver bas-relief portrait medallion of the poet Walt Whitman, executed by Charles H. Osher of Flint, Mich. Only three medallions were struck—one for the Library, one for the sculptor, and one for Mr. Feinberg.

The presentation took place July 20 in the office of the Librarian of Congress. John G. Lorenz, Deputy Librarian of Congress, accepted the gift for the Library. A small group of Library officers and friends of Mr. Feinberg were present.

The bearded, full-face representation of Whitman is based upon photographs of the poet taken when he was about 52, near the conclusion of his 10-year residence in Washington, D.C. Because Whitman suffered a paralytic stroke less than two years later, in January 1873, the portrait captures one of the last representations of the poet in full health and vigor.

The medallion was commissioned by Mr. Feinberg in recognition of the 1969 acquisition of the collection of books, manuscripts, and memorabilia of Walt Whitman, assembled by Mr. Feinberg over a period of 40 years. The presentation occurs near the 100th anniversary of the poet's final publications as a resident of Washington: the enlarged fifth edition of Leaves of Grass and As a Strong Bird of Pinions Free, both published in 1872.

The medallion will be displayed in the Library's Manuscript Division as part of its 75th anniversary exhibit opening August 1.

THE LAW LIBRARY: 140 YEARS OF SERVICE AND GROWTH

The Law Library is currently showing an exhibit honoring the anniversary of legislation enacted on July 14, 1832, establishing it as a separate department of the Library of Congress. Among rare items in the exhibit are the first edition of Littleton's Tenures (1482), one of the three known copies in existence; 1563 Cedulario de Puga (Mexico); and Coutumes de Normandie, a 15th-century illuminated manuscript. There are also four photographs of the Law Library taken in 1895 and 1935.

The initial holdings of the Law Library, 2,011 volumes removed from the general Library collections, included 639 books from Thomas Jefferson's library, one of which, Ranulf de Glanville's Tractatus de Legibus et Consuetudinibus Regni Anglie (1554?) is on view in the exhibit.

The Law Library's service to Congress and to the nation has been unique and widespread. Founded to serve the Supreme Court, the Law Library was closely associated with that institution for over 100 years. As the nation's resource and information center for law, however, the Law Library's collections have been available from the beginning to the members of Congress, various branches of Government, and the bench and bar; legal scholars, law students, historians, and many others now depend on its books and services.

Originally located in the U.S. Capitol, in an "apartment" set aside on the main floor of the Senate side, north of the main library, it was transferred in 1843 to the north wing of the ground floor, near the Supreme Court, and in 1860, moved across the hall into the former quarters of the Court. When the Library of Congress Main Building opened in 1897, a small law collection was brought into the alcoves of the Main Reading Room, and the bulk of the collection followed in 1902, although the law librarian's office and a sizeable collection remained in the Capitol until 1917. The Capitol branch of the Law Library remained in its old location until 1950, when it was moved into its present quarters adjacent to the Senate Library.

Initially, the collections included Anglo-American statutes, law reports, and treatises, as well as selected items on jurisprudence, philosophy of law, legal history, and a sampling of foreign law materials, particularly French. The expansion of American interest to worldwide legal issues was reflected in the development of the Law Library. The acquisition of European and British Colonial materials started shortly before World War I, extensive Latin American materials were acquired in the 1920's and the Oriental, Near Eastern, and African law collections were greatly expanded in the 1950's. Today, with over a million volumes, the Law Library maintains the largest, most comprehensive body of legal materials in the United States.

To make the bibliographical resources of the Law Library available for legal scholarship, numerous publications have been prepared throughout its history, including catalogs in 1839, 1849, and 1860, and in the early 1900's a major project to index all Federal legislation. A work on the law of Germany published in 1912 was the first in a series of guides to the law, legal literature, institutions, and juristic thought in various countries, particularly the Latin American nations and Eastern Europe.

The Law Library celebrated the opening of the exhibit, which will remain on view in the Law Library foyer through September 29, with a departmental coffee in the office of Law Librarian Carleton W. Kenyon. Mr. Kenyon, who assumed his present position on June 1, 1971, has initiated the research necessary to compile a complete history of the Law Library. In his remarks on the occasion, he gave tribute to former law librarians and other dedicated employees of the past.

A highlight of the coffee was a contest sponsored by the Executive Assistant, Kimberly W. Dobbs, in which employees submitted estimates of the number of volumes in the Law Library collection in 1847. Joyce Van Egmond of the European Division came the closest to the actual number of 6,770 volumes and was awarded a free lunch for two at a Capitol Hill restaurant.

BERNHARD EXHIBIT OPENS AUGUST 1

"Memorial Tribute to Lucian Bernhard," an exhibition of 15 posters chiefly from the World War I period, will go on display August 1 in the south and southeast corridors, Ground Floor, of the Main Building. The month-long exhibition honors the graphic artist and poster designer who died last May in New York at the age of 89.

Bernhard started his career in Berlin in the early years of this century. In common with many other artists of his time, he shared the conviction that art should become a part of daily life, and this led him to start creating posters. Although he had little formal training in art, he was endowed with talent and imagination. He soon evolved a bold and simplified style of illustration, and mastered the use of strikingly simple color schemes. He even drew new letter forms for use in his advertising.

By 1922, when he came to the United States, Bernhard had become one of Germany's most important commercial artists. He had designed interiors, stage sets, and fine books; his posters for German industry in the carefree days before 1914, for the War Loan during hostilities, and for political parties under the post-war German Republic, had made him a world-famous figure.

He came to America, along with the other leading poster designers of Europe, to discuss ways of improving American advertising art at the invitation of Roy Latham, a lithographer. Bernhard stayed, having fallen in love with the country, when the others went home, and he carved out a new life for himself in New York. He designed books for Random House, Knopf, and the Pynson Press and became widely known for his posters for Rem cough syrup. He designed several families of type faces, including Bernhard Gothic, Bernhard Modern, Cursive, and Tempo.

As his fame grew, he developed the amusing habit of constantly changing his biographical data. As his son Karl, himself a prominent graphic designer, puts it, "birthplace, family, youth and early career are pleasantly clouded." True to form, he even arranged to have his movingly worded and beautifully printed obituary, which is included in the exhibition, sent to the Library with no return address.

AIR CONDITIONING FAILURE REDUCES CARD DIVISION PRODUCTION

The Card Division has suffered a severe setback in its production in the past week when the air conditioning equipment failed in Buildings 159 and 159E at the Navy Yard Annex where the division is housed.

On Wednesday, July 12, the equipment broke down and by Thursday temperatures in areas of the division were as high as 99 degrees and the humidity was as high as 85 percent. The high temperatures and humidity persisted through Tuesday, July 18, and made working conditions extremely difficult, resulting in a consideralbe loss of production man-hours.

On Thursday, July 13, the Card Division staff was dismissed at 2 p.m., on Friday at 1:45 p.m., on Monday at 2 p.m., and on Tuesday at 9:45 a.m. In addition, during the hours worked in this period, the staff was authorized rest periods during each hour in order to leave the building for fresh air. Repairs were finally completed by the General Services Administration, which is responsible for the maintenance of the building, on the evening of July 18 and on Wednesday morning, the Card Division resumed its normal operations. It is now making every effort to reduce the backlog with the least possible delay. During this breakdown, 11 other Government agencies in the area were similarly affected.

PROCESSING DEPARTMENT NEWS

A section entitled "CIP Entries, Adult, and Juvenile" appears in Vol. 1, No. 1 of the Mystery/Science Fiction Book Guide issued by Holt Information Systems, a division of Holt, Rinehart and Winston, Inc. (383 Madison Ave., New York, N.Y. 10017, $24.50 a year). It includes "bibliographic information and complete LC cataloging for all the (English-language) adult and juvenile mystery, suspense, and detective stories, ghost stories, and science fiction books processed by the Library of Congress in the last two months. It is the first publication of the Computext MARC Bibliography Series, and the first such subject bibliography ever published on a bimonthly basis. Its publication has been made possible by the utilization of the Library of Congress MARC II tapes."

Entries are arranged alphabetically by author under the various categories and will be cumulated in a hardbound annual. There are a title index and a separate listing under series. The CIP section "is actually a listing of forthcoming and/or new mystery and science fiction books. The entries will be repeated in later issues of the Book Guide after the books are published." A companion Law Book Guide has been announced, and guides on sports and historical fiction are being developed.

Shipments of LC printed catalog cards, book catalogs, and other publications distributed by the Card Division are now being made by surface mail at the lowest applicable postal rates. This policy has been adopted in order to avoid general price increases based on the rising cost of Air, Registered, Special Delivery, and certain other categories which comprise priority mailings.

A few examples set forth below reflect the differences between mailings sent by the lowest applicable surface rate–library materials, special fourth-class rate, or regular mail–compared with the airmail rates in the primary classifications:

		Unit Rate
Item	Size	Surface	Airmail
Letters	regular	$ .08	$ .11
Card packets	3 ounces	.06	.33
Package	3 pounds	.10	1.86
Package	7 pounds	.18	3.73

Although priority mailings will no longer be used, this should not cause unreasonable delays in delivery to subscribers. If such delay is encountered, the policy can be changed and prices, which must include the cost of postage, can be adjusted accordingly.

The MARC Development Office has received a sample magnetic tape of machine-readable records representing entries in the Bibliographie de la France. These records follow the format specifications recommended for adoption by the International Standards Organization, which are based on the American National Standards Institute's American National Standard for Bibliographic Information Interchange on Magnetic Tape (ANSI Z39.2-1971). Content designators in the French machine-readable records are based on those used by the Library of Congress in the MARC Distribution Service and by the British National Bibliography. For further information, interested persons should write to Administrateur Général, Bibliothèque Nationale, 58 Rue de Richelieu, 75 Paris 02, France.

RETIREMENTS

Delmar W. McClellan, Space Management Specialist, Buildings Management Office, retired from the Library of Congress on June 30, after 39 years of Federal service.

Appointed on July 1, 1933, as an assistant in the Reading Rooms, Mr. McClellan served in the Photoduplication Service from 1941 until his military service with the U.S. Maritime Service from 1942 to 1946. He returned in 1947 to administrative duties in the Photoduplication Service and was promoted in 1949 to the position of Assistant to the Keeper of the Collections. In 1957, he was named Deputy Security Officer in the Office of the Keeper and transferred to the Administrative Department Office in this capacity in 1963. Designated Assistant Space Management Officer in 1968, he became Space Management Officer in the Administrative Department in 1970, and transferred in this position to the Buildings Management Office the same year. He was appointed Space Management Specialist in 1971.

Mr. McClellan's contributions to security of the Library's collections and the solution of complex space problems involving enormous quantities of Library materials have been significant. As Deputy Security Officer he had responsibility for the physical security of the holdings of the Library, as well as the primary concern for the preservation and care of the Library's collections, including the most priceless treasures. In space planning, he demonstrated his thorough understanding of the many considerations involved in the relocation of quantities of materials as crowded decks required shifts in stack assignments. He knew the Library buildings thoroughly, his attention to essential detail was exceptional, and he saw that complicated space moves were completed with efficiency, and dispatch. His trustworthiness and efficiency made him an invaluable employee. Among the many important space moves he accomplished were the extensive planning for the occupancy of the Massachusetts Avenue Annex and Duke Street, for which he received a Meritorious Service Award in 1968. He was also closely involved in planning for the Library's use of film vaults at Wright-Patterson Air Force Base in Ohio and in the move of the Copyright Office to Crystal Mall, the Geography and Map Division to Alexandria, and the Division for the Blind and Physically Handicapped to Taylor Street. In all of these difficult assignments his intelligence, common sense, and commitment to duty were demonstrated.

Mr. and Mrs. McClellan and Mr. Mumford

At a reception given in the Whittall Pavilion by the Buildings Management Office on July 7 it was clear that Mac was admired by his colleagues for his broad knowledge of the Library and his devotion to it. The Librarian presented him with a Meritorious Service Award, citing him "for serving the Library of Congress with distinction during the past 39 years. In the performance of assigned duties you have displayed unusual competence and your extensive knowledge of programs and physical facilities has contributed immeasurably to the success of the Library's space management program. This distinguished performance of duty represents an outstanding achievement which is in keepting with the highest standards of the Library and reflects great credit upon you and the Library of Congress."

Paul L. Berry, William J. Welsh, F. E. Croxton, and Gerald T. Garvey all paid tribute not only to his work performance but to the characteristics–his wit and friendliness–that made him a delightful colleague and a valued friend. After Mr. Welsh and William W. Rossiter had finished presenting, one by one with appropriate comments, a whole cartonful of gifts, Duard M. Eddins, who has presided at the reception ceremonies, paid his own respects to Mac's skill, persistence, and good nature–and left the guests wondering who would inherit the 11½-inch rule with which Mac has always solved the Library's space problems.

Mrs. Helen M. Payne, Head of the Book Section in the Copyright Office Cataloging Division, retired on June 30 after approximately 36 years of Federal service.

Mrs. Payne grew up in Van Wert, Ohio, attended Marion College in Marion, Va., and received her B.A. degree in library science from George Washington University. She joined the staff of the Union Catalog Division in April 1931 and transferred in July to the Cataloging Division as Assistant Supervisor of the Document Serial Record Section. She was a Cataloger from 1933 to 1941 and a Reviser from 1941 to 1945, when she left the Library for five years to devote her full time to her family.

She returned to the Library in October 1950 as a Cataloger in the Copyright Office and was promoted to Reviser in August 1952, to Assistant Head of the Book Section in November 1962, and to her last position in November 1966.

Pvt. Randolph Daily, a member of the Special Police Force, retired on June 30, after more than 35 years of Federal service.

Pvt. Daily, a native of Ellenboro, N.C., attended school in Mecklenburg Co., Va., and came to Washington, D.C., in 1933. From June 1933 to July 1936, he served with the U.S. Army. In September 1936, he accepted a position with the Soldiers' Home in Washington, D.C., and then was employed at the Department of Agriculture from 1939 until he joined the staff of the Library of Congress in 1942. He left the Library in 1944 to work at the Veterans Hospital until May 1947 when he returned to LC. All of Pvt. Daily's Library service has been on the Special Police Force.

Mr. Daily will be remembered for his devotion to duty and his exemplary leave record. During his years at the Library, Mr. Daily made many friends who presented him with a purse upon his retirement.

Mrs. Marjorie G. McCannon, Assistant Chief of Copyright Office Reference Division, retired recently after 30 years of Federal service. Mrs. McCannon began her Government career in 1941 with the Corps of Engineers. In March 1942, she transferred to a position in the Office of the Solicitor in the Department of Agriculture.

In August 1948, Mrs. McCannon came to the Copyright Office as an Examiner in the Examining Division, and in 1952 became an advisor on the legal staff. In 1953, she was named Assistant Chief of the Reference Division.

A native of Center, Mo., Mrs. McCannon studied at Washington University in St. Louis and received an LL.B. degree from the School of Law there. She is a member of the Missouri and U.S. Supreme Court Bars, of the American Bar Association, and of the Federal Bar Association. Mrs. McCannon has written a number of articles on copyright. She is the author of "The Manufacturing Clause of the U.S. Copyright Law," and is a leading authority on this aspect of the law; in addition she is a co-author of "Notice of Copyright," both of which studies were made in connection with the program for the general revision of the copyright statute.

Mrs. Vernadine E. Hierst, Offset Pressman in the Printing Unit of the Central Services Division, retired on June 30 after nearly 30 years of Federal service, 22 years of which were devoted to the Library of Congress.

A native of Arlington, Va., Mrs. Hierst worked for four years in the War Department before transferring to the Department of Commerce. She remained there two years, and then moved to the Department of the Army. In January 1950, she joined the Library staff as an Offset Press Operator in the then Office of the Secretary where she was assigned to increasingly responsible positions until her transfer to the Technical Information Division in 1954. On June 30, 1959, Mrs. Hierst returned to the Office of the Secretary (now the Central Services Division) in the position she held at the time of her retirement.

Mrs. Hierst was guest of honor at a luncheon on Friday, June 30, attended by both present and former co-workers, and at which she was presented a gift. F. E. Croxton, Director of the Administrative Department, presented her with a Retirement Certificate.

John Pierce, Library Technician in the Materials Control Section of the Copyright Office Service Division, retired on June 30 after approximately 26 years of Federal service.

A veteran of World War II, Mr. Pierce came to the Copyright Office on August 23, 1948, as a Searcher in the Service Division, where he has held various positions. He also worked for a period in the Examining Division and in the Register's Office. Mr. Pierce holds an A.B. degree in history from Syracuse University and an LL.B. degree from Columbus University School of Law.

On June 28, Mr. Pierce was the guest at a luncheon held in his honor by some 40 of his colleagues.

Philip C. Greenwell, Head of the Miscellaneous Files Unit in the Materials Control Section of the Copyright Office Service Division, retired on June 30 after approximately 23 years of Federal service.

Mr. Greenwell worked for the Post Office Department until 1942, and was Chief of Mail and Security Investigation for the War Production Board from 1942 to 1946. He was self-employed from 1946 to 1954, when he came to the Library's Copyright Office as a Library Assistant in the Service Division. He has held various positions in that division.

Mr. Greenwell received his LL.B. degree from the former National University Law School—now incorporated into the George Washington University Law School.

AWARDS

Stephen A. Langone, Specialist in American Indian Affairs in the Government and General Research Division of the Congressional Research Service, was presented a 30-year Federal Service Award pin on June 22 by Lester S. Jayson, Director of the Service.

Mr. Langone's entire term of Government employment has been in the Library of Congress, with the exception of nearly three years with the U.S. Army during World War II. Born and educated in Medford, Mass., he joined the Library in 1942 as a Clerk in the former Legislative Reference Service. He returned from military leave in 1946 as a Clerk Typist and became a Library Assistant in 1947 and a Reference Librarian in the Congressional Reading Room in 1948. He moved in 1949 to the former History and General Research Division, and in 1955, he was promoted to Analyst in Indian Affairs in the Education and Public Welfare Division. In 1964, Mr. Langone assumed the duties of Supervisor of the Translating Unit in the Government and General Research Division while continuing his research work in the field of Indian Affairs. He served in progressively responsible positions and was promoted to his present position in May 1971. In addition to his regular assignment, he served two years as Fair Employment Practices Officer and is currently serving as Equal Opportunity Officer for the Library's Equal Opportunity Program.

Mrs. Ann F. Palmer, Head Cataloger and Training Officer of the Copyright Office Cataloging Division, was presented a 30-year Federal Service Award pin on June 20 by George D. Cary, Register of Copyrights.

Mrs. Palmer came to the Copyright Office in June 1942 as a Junior Cataloger. She has been a member of the Cataloging Division from the time of its organization in 1946 until 1963 when she was promoted to Assistant Editor and later Associate Editor of the Library of Congress Catalog—Books: Subjects in the Catalog Maintenance Division of the Processing Department. On March 13, 1967, she returned to the Copyright Office with a promotion to her present position.

Mrs. Palmer has received both a Meritorious Service Award and an Outstanding Performance Rating.

Mrs. Barbara H. Williams, Research Production Assistant in the Economics Division of the Congressional Research Service, was presented a 20-year Federal Service Award pin on June 27 by Mr. Jayson.

Mrs. Williams began her Federal career in July 1952 with the Department of the Army, where she worked as Military Personnel Clerk and supervised the work of several clerk-typists. She came to the Library in March 1962 and served a brief period as Editorial Clerk-Typist in the Economics Division of LRS before transferring to the Senior Specialist Division. In May 1968 she was promoted to the position of Administrative Secretary and reassigned to the Economics Division. Mrs. Williams was promoted to her present assignment in November 1970 and in this position has demonstrated a high degree of efficiency and competence.

Fred Bindman Wins Chess Tourney

Chess fans may think Bobby Fischer can outmaneuver Boris Spassky at Reykjavik, Iceland, but can Bobby counter the Secret Sicilian Defense of Fred Bindman, first place trophy winner in the LC chess tournament? Presenting the award to Mr. Bindman, who is Assistant Head of the Music Section of the Descriptive Cataloging Division, was Warren Lenhart, President of the Chess Club and Technical Information Specialist in CRS. Second place went to Samuel Kucherov and third place to Alex Zurichenko, both former LC staff members. The tournament lasted several months, providing an opportunity for the 14 participants to test the skill of other club members.

A chess player with 30 years experience, Mr. Bindman has played in U.S. Chess Federation open tournaments against both professional and amateur players. He presently owns five trophies, several chess sets, and a chess library.

The WRA Chess Club has a current membership of 17 and welcomes anyone, regardless of their chess-playing experience, to join and participate in coming tournaments. For information on becoming a member, contact Mr. Lenhart on ext. 6333.

STAFF ACTIVITIES

On June 26, Joseph C. Hickerson, Reference Librarian in the Archive of Folk Song, presented a lecture–concert entitled "American Folk Music as Social Commentary" as the opening program in the Arts as Social Commentary festival at the University of Maryland Baltimore Campus. The next morning, Mr. Hickerson spoke and played recorded examples for the UMBC Music Department class entitled "Music as Political Satire and Protest."

Ronn D. Kaiser, International and Comparative Law Specialist of the Law Library, is the author of a paper which appeared in the March issue of Journal of Common Market Studies. The paper, entitled "Toward the Copernican Phase of Regional Integration Theory," analyzes Ernst B. Haas' innovations in the neofunctionalist theory of regional integration. Mr. Kaiser states that in order for the theory to be of use to present-day socio-political systems, more basic, empirical changes are needed than those suggested by Mr. Haas, leader of the neofunctionalist school. Only when a complete conceptual reorientation of the theory is undertaken, Mr. Kaiser emphasizes, will the theory enter its Copernican phase.

Dorothy M. Schrader, Assistant Chief of the Copyright Office Examining Division, is the author of an article entitled "Vesting Date of the Renewal Copyright Interest," Which appears in the April issue of Bulletin of the Copyright Society of the U.S.A. (pp. 277-304). The article is an examination of three possible dates on which the renewal interest becomes fixed and an attempt "to ascertain which one probably represents the correct solution."

On June 26, Sarah L. Wallace, Publications Officer, received the Alexandrine medal, an award made by the College of St. Catherine in St. Paul, Minn., to women who have distinguished themselves in their professions through outstanding services which they have contributed to society. Miss Wallace is an alumna of St. Catherine's. The citation presented by Sr. Alberta Huber, President of the College, praised Miss Wallace for her "many talents and your willingness to share them" and her "unfailing sense of humor which has lightened so many pages of our lives." While serving as publicity director of the Minneapolis Public Library, Miss Wallace received the John Cotton Dana Publicity Award. She was also the first woman to receive the Horace Hart Award given annually for public service in the field of printing and publicity.

Chi Wang, Assistant Head of the Chinese and Korean Section, Orientalia Division, visited major libraries in Peking, Shanghai, and Canton during a trip to the People's Republic of China from June 1-18. Dr. Wang, on temporary leave from the Library of Congress to serve as director of the Chinese University of Hong Kong Library, cabled that he had been able to discuss possible exchange of publications between the National Library of Peking and the Library of Congress. This constitutes the first exchange of views between the two libraries since 1949. Dr. Wang also reported that a possible visit of American librarians to China was a subject for further discussion; additional details of the trip are expected shortly. He will return to Washington in early September.

PERSONNEL CHANGES

Former LC Employees Return from Military Duty

Two LC employees who have been absent on military leave, have recently returned to their positions in the Photoduplication Service.

NEWS IN THE LIBRARY WORLD

Book Conservation Seminar to Be Repeated

The Sedona Arts Center, Inc., Sedona Ariz., has announced that because the Third Seminar in Book Conservation scheduled for September 25-29 has been oversubscribed, a repeat Seminar will be held from October 8-13. The program described in the original announcement will be followed. (See LC Information Bulletin, July 14, p. 324).

Article About LC Appears in Swiss Journal

Cuno Jud, Parliamentary Librarian of Switzerland, is the author of "Einiges über die Library of Congress" in the third 1972 number of Nachrichten/Nouvelles/Notizie, the quarterly publication of the Association of Swiss Librarians and the Swiss Association of Documentation. Dr. Jud, who spent several months at the Library of Congress last year, reviews the Library's history and current activities, with special attention to the work of the Congressional Research Service. The article is illustrated with a handsome color photograph of the Main Reading Room.
